

Six farmers were named the country's outstanding malting barley growers during an awards breakfast at FarmTech 2010 in Edmonton last month. They were selected from 15 who growers were nominated in their respective regions across the Prairies. Nominations were based on growers' total management practices, including: preplanting planning, growing, harvesting, storage and marketing. (L-R) Michael Edney of the Canadian Grain Commission; Gary Southgate of Battleford, Sask.; Brian Acton of Lemberg, Sask.; Ron Waldenberger of Marquis, Sask.; Peter Bokenfohr of Picardville, Alta.; Brent McBean of Strathmore, Alta.; and Michael Brophy of the Brewing and Malting Barley Research Institute. Missing: Bill Slemko of Hussar, Alta. — Photo courtesy Alberta Barley Commission

